

MEDIA COVERAGE

Client: e-fill

Publication: The Age

Date: 15 September, 2004

Page No.: Business, page 2

TRANSPORT

Gunn barrels back into the firing line

Peter Gunn has re-entered the transport industry. Mr Gunn's PGA Group, a private investment company, has teamed up with supply chain management group Gluck Forwarding Systems to buy equal shares in a logistics company, e-fill.

Gluck and PGA have bought e-fill from Shell. e-fill has two main sides to its operations: it manages the movement of products to petrol and convenience stores, and also manages imports, mainly apparel, from the point of manufacture to the point of sale.

Chief executive Scott McKay said the backing of PGA and Gluck would provide direct access to off-shore facilities, particularly in Asia, a formidable collective client base, robust financial support and industry expertise.

e-fill turns over less than $10 million a year, but Mr McKay said his target was to reach a turnover of $50 million within five years. Its main customers include Coles Express and Caltex outlets, plus garment fashion suppliers including Apparel Designs fulfilment.